

“IS MONGOLIA AN OASIS OF DEMOCRACY?:
LESSONS LEARNT AND MILESTONES”
INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC CONFERENCE

October 14, 2022, Ulaanbaatar, National University of Mongolia,

Upon gaining independence from the Soviet Union in 1990, Mongolia has built its pathways to a democratic state, and the scholars and researchers have described “Mongolia as an oasis of democracy” in Asia. Mongolians have developed the representative and direct democracy to a certain extent.

Therefore, we are required to make a critical inquiry on the successes and failures of Mongolian democracy over the past 30 years. It is important that this should be well-responded through academic panels from the perspectives of humanities-political science, sociology, anthropology and economics as well as interdisciplinary approaches, determining the direction of future development. This is the main goal of this international scientific conference through which the experiences and practices of Mongolia, other countries in transition and democratic societies are to be analyzed and discussed.

Scientists and researchers are invited to share their research results with us at this international scientific conference.
